Costs in unfair and wrongful dismissal claims in the Employment Tribunals

April 2025

We always liaise closely with you at the outset of any instruction to agree on costs before undertaking any item of work

It is important to us that you understand the upfront costs associated with our instruction. Employers should be aware that the normal rule in Employment Tribunals is that the parties bear their own costs regardless of the outcome. There are exceptions to this general rule where cases are brought unreasonably or where the conduct of the claim is unreasonable.

Claims for unfair and wrongful dismissal come in various shapes and sizes and the cost of defending proceedings will depend on the nature of the issues (for example whether it is a misconduct case or one dealing with redundancy), the volume of the documentary evidence, the number of witnesses likely to be called and the duration of the final hearing which is determined by the Employment Tribunal (normally at a case management hearing). For these reasons, it is not possible to provide any meaningful estimate of costs in advance of a fuller understanding of the claims.

We set out below the typical range of costs to be expected when a business instructs us in relation to advice and representation when faced with a claim by a former employee in the Employment Tribunal for either unfair dismissal or wrongful dismissal. In some cases, it may be possible to agree with us a fixed fee in relation to the work from start to finish, but a fixed fee may not be in your best interests if there is a prospect of early settlement.

The total charges (excluding disbursements) in acting on behalf of an employer in defending a claim for unfair or wrongful dismissal will normally be in the region of £30,000 to £35,000 plus VAT at the current rate, being 20% (£36,000 to £42,000 inclusive of VAT).

A significant element of our charges will depend on the length of the final hearing before the Employment Tribunal and this can range from one day in the simplest of cases to two weeks or more in complex cases. It will also turn on the complexities of the case which might include the number of parties, whether it is necessary to make, or defend applications prior to the final hearing and whether there are allegations of discrimination linked to an unfair dismissal. For a medium complexity case, the total charges (excluding disbursements) will normally be in the region of £40,000 plus VAT at the current rate, being 20% (£48,000 inclusive of VAT). For a high complexity case, the total charges (excluding disbursements) will normally be in the region of £48,000 plus VAT at the current rate, being 20% (£57,600 inclusive of VAT).

Our charges include the following work:

- taking your full instructions;
- advising you on the merits of the case;
- preparing and filing the Grounds of Response/liasing with counsel in this regard;
- preparing for and attending a case management hearing (or agreeing on the case management timetable) and briefing counsel for the hearing if appropriate;
- preparing and agreeing on a list of issues if required;
- dealing with your disclosure obligations;
- reviewing the claimant's disclosure;
- preparing witness evidence;
- instructing counsel for the hearing;

- preparing the case for the final hearing which will include agreeing on trial bundles, and liaising with counsel and witnesses; and
- attending the hearing.

In terms of timescales, this is very much dictated by the Employment Tribunal which sets a timetable and will fix the hearing dates subject to its own resources. You should anticipate at least a 9 to 12-month turnaround from the date an ET1 claim form is received to the date the Employment Tribunal list it for final hearing. In some cases, this may be longer depending on which Employment Tribunal the claim is listed.

The indicative cost range does not include our charges for any work that may prove necessary during the claim, which would be unknown at the outset; such as an interim application for specific disclosure or as a result of a party's non-compliance.

In most cases we recommend that counsel is instructed to represent the business at the final hearing. Sometimes, it is appropriate to retain counsel to advise on the merits and settle the Grounds of Response. The level of the brief fees for counsel will depend upon their seniority and the duration of the hearing. Counsel's fees would be a disbursement payable by the business and would be in the region of £8,000 plus VAT (£9,600 inclusive of VAT for a one-day hearing). The brief fee covers the preparation for the hearing and the first day. Counsel will charge a refresher fee for each additional day, and refresher fees normally range from £1,500 to £3,000 plus VAT (£1,800 to £3,600 inclusive of VAT).

We allocate work based on your case's complexity and the experience of our fee-earners. Time spent is charged at the fee-earner's hourly rate.

Fee-Earner	Position	Standard Hourly Charge Out Rate	Year of Qualification
Karen Cole	Partner and Head of Department	£450 plus VAT	2013
Alex Deal	Managing Partner	£575 plus VAT	2001
Daniel Downes	Associate Solicitor	£350 plus VAT	2005
Patrick Simpson	Solicitor	£265 plus VAT	2023

Our charges are subject to VAT, currently 20% in the UK.

Daniel and Patrick's work is undertaken under the supervision of Karen and Alex.
