

Good Divorce Week

November 2021

Good Divorce Week is an initiative that takes place annually when Resolution campaign on an important issue relating to families. Resolution is a community of professionals committed to assisting clients in resolving family disputes in a constructive and non-confrontational way.

The theme for this year's Good Divorce week is "Parenting Through Separation", and Resolution has produced a guide, which provides information and support to co-parents to help them through the challenges that often arise on separation.

The guide provides insight on how children of different ages react to parents separating and advises parents on how to deal with this. It also highlights the difficult emotions the adults may encounter when a relationship ends.

Helpfully, the guide lists the different ways that parents could attempt to resolve any disagreements relating to child arrangements which are:

1. Direct discussions
2. Mediation
3. Arbitration
4. Court

For any further information, please contact family lawyers Vandana Chitroda or William Roberts-Phelps. Vandana and William are both members of Resolution. They are committed to assisting clients in bringing their disputes to an amicable conclusion in a non-confrontational way.
